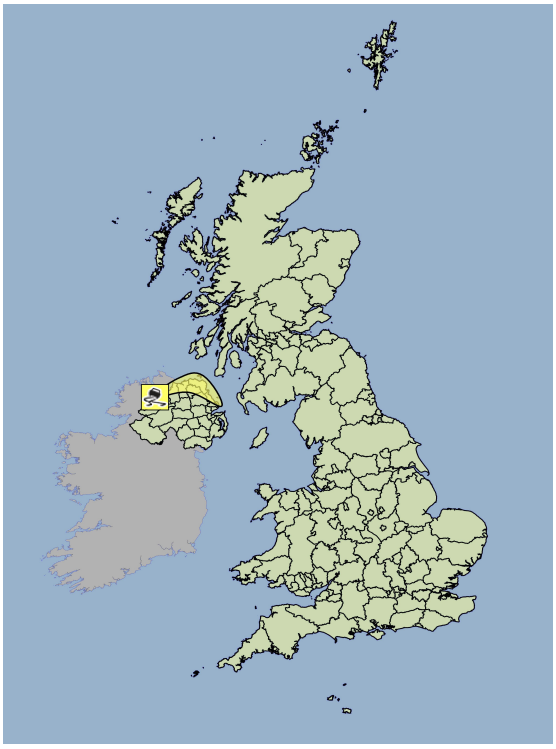
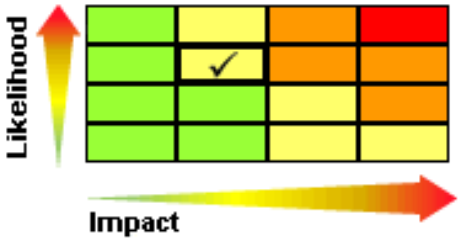
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Northwesterly winds will bring further wintry showers southwards across Northern Ireland this morning. Over much of the province these will fall as light snow, but towards the north coast rain or sleet is more likely, falling onto subzero roads in places. The risk of icy patches will diminish as road surface temperatures rise again by mid-morning.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 03:45 on Mon, 02nd Feb 2015 until 10:00 on Mon, 02nd Feb 2015

Showers will continue to affect northern parts of Northern Ireland this morning. These will fall as snow inland, but in coastal areas rain or sleet may fall onto subzero roads. The public should be aware of the risk of icy stretches until mid-morning.
